

QUOITS

QUORPORATE GAMES...

Fun team-based croquet – petanque – quoits – quornhole for groups

QUOITS: really quite British

The original and current traditional game is played with steel quoits. Who knew that these quoits could weigh 6 to 11 lbs, and that the tops and bottoms are different? Or that there's a Long Game, a Northern Game and quoit a lot of words like 'cleaner', 'leaner', 'lighter', 'ringer', 'cover', and 'side-toucher'?

Given our professional approach and light-touch adaptations, with some good quality rope quoits (so you can forget floppy for a start!), our version makes for a great addition to a free-play format based either on our croquet and/or petanque.

We have created our own quoits boards and have adapted the rules of several versions of quoits to include a target zone for lower points and hobs (stakes to you and me) which - when ringed with a quoit - score higher points. Quoits can be played on grass and most outdoor surfaces, and our quoits boards can be set up indoors.

For each quoits board the ideal space would be 6m square. We recommend our quoits boards are used for self-play in combination with petanque and/or croquet run by our games coaches. Each quoits board can be used for 1-a-side, 2-a-side or 3-a-side. With free play the likely usage will be by two sides each of two players and the length of each game can be decided by the players themselves.

QUOITS

something for the players to throw themselves into...

QUOITS

QUORPORATE QUOITS: what it's not...

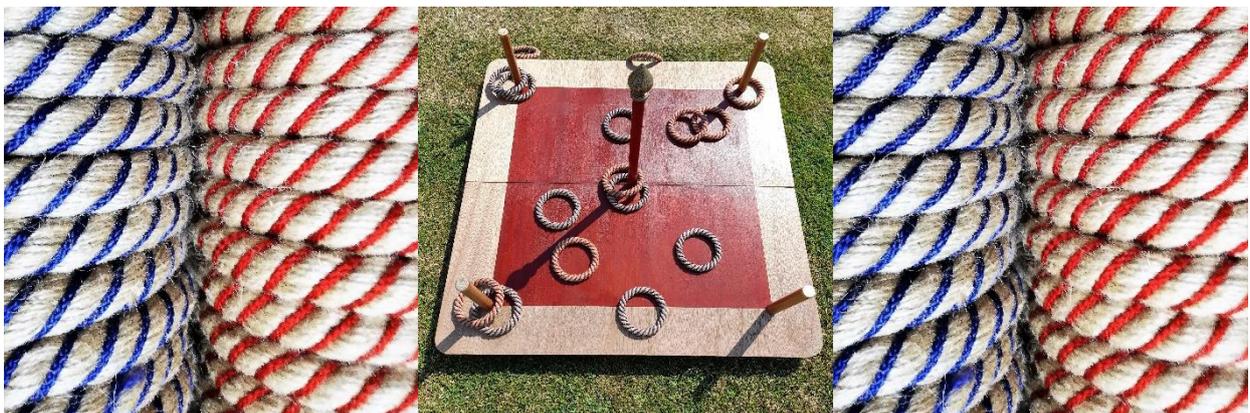

A cheap garden centre set of floppy quoits and a fold-out frame with 5 stakes ridiculously close to each other. Nor is it an overly serious version of one of the many hundreds-of-years-old variants from around the UK.

QUORPORATE QUOITS: what it is...

We combine steel-reinforced quoits with the rules of traditional, deck and lawn quoits to make quoit a good team game with our own quoits boards as shown here. Please don't tell the wacky clay bed lovers from East Anglia or those quirky slate bed guys in Pennsylvania!

OTHER QUORPORATE GAMES AVAILABLE: CROQUET | PETANQUE | QUORNHOLE